

Perfluoroalkyl and polyfluoroalkyl substances – or PFAS – are ‘forever chemicals’ that have been used since the 1950s in many products (textiles, frying pans, packaging, cosmetics, etc.). Highly persistent, they contaminate the air, water and soil and accumulate in living organisms and the human body.

Find out more about OiEau's key figures at <https://chiffrecl.oieau.fr/>

